THE HOUSEHOLD.

To remove mildew stains, soak in milk for forty-eight hours, or rub with lemon juice and salt.

To stone raisins, throw them into a bowl of boiling water. As soon as they are cool enough to handle, stem them in the water and throw them into a bowl.

Cold water, that has been oily and black, may be, it is said, clarified with powdered alum and powdered borax. Four ounces of each will suffice to clear fifty barrels of water.

To keep the bread-jar and cake-box sweet, rinse after washing, with boiling water in which a little common soda has been dissolved; then set out doors in the sun for a few hours.

Sponge carpets occasionally with hot water in which either common salt or powdered alum has been dissolved. This not only brightens the carpet, but prevents moths.—The Ladies' Home Journal.

To keep glassware bright, wipe directly from the hot ashes. Tumblers used for milk should be thoroughly rinsed in cold water before being immersed in hot soda, but hot water seems to drive the lime into the glass and give them a dingy appearance.

Keep sewer pipes connected with stationary stands, clean and wholesome by scalding once a week with boiling water in which a little common soda has been dissolved, remembering that many a case of diphtheria has been attributed to foul sewer pipes.

A valuable salve for cuts or wounds of any kind: Boil one-half cup of thick, sweet cream ten or fifteen minutes, stirring constantly; when cold, beat it thoroughly, when it will be a creamy paste. Bottle and cork tightly or make fresh every time.

A good cement for mending broken china: Dissolve a little gum-arabic in a little water so that it is rather thick, put enough plaster of Paris into this to make a thick paste. Cement broken pieces of china together, and in half an hour they cannot be broken in the same place. Hot water seems to make it more firm.

RICE CREAM—Soak 3 cups of rice in 14 cups of warm water until it swells, then cook until soft. Heat 1 pint of rich cream milk to boiling point, then add the yolks of 3 eggs beaten with 4 tablespoons of sugar. Stir until it thickens and frost the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth, sweetened and flavored. Brown in the oven.

Fruit stains of long standing on white goods, or fresh stains that refuse to yield to ordinary treatment, may be removed by dipping into a very weak solution of chloride of lime, and spreading in the sun or on the grass, if possible, to bleach. As soon as the stains disappear, rinse thoroughly, as the lime is apt to injure the fabric. Use soft water both in making the solution and in rinsing afterward.

The spice poison is a growing favorite in the sick-room. It is pleasant to use and easily made. Mix together dry, one heaping teaspoonful each of ground ginger, cinnamon, cloves and flour. Molster with hot water until of proper consistency to spread. Double and heat a piece of old cotton, spread the plaster on it and cover with cheese-cloth. When cold, molster with brandy or whiskey and reheat.

Use soap bark for cleansing woolen dress goods. Soak ten cents' worth over night in a pail of warm—not hot—water. In the morning strain and add two-thirds of it to the water in which the goods are to be washed, and if very much soiled, a teaspoonful of ammonia, also. Pour the rest of the water in which the soap bark was soaked, into the rinsing water, wring well and hang out-of-doors where they will dry rapidly. When nearly dry, iron on the wrong side. The soap bark not only cleanses, but gives a little body to the material, much as new goods have.

THE ICE-BOX.—This is a detail about which many cooks are not sufficiently wise. If the ice-box is not kept perfectly sweet, the articles of food put into it will not be sweet either. It should have a thorough cleaning from top to bottom at least once a week in winter, summer, twice the water being emptied every day without fail, when the box is emptied, and thoroughly cleaned and overhauled; if any close smell should be perceived, wet a cloth with vinegar, wash over every part and then leave the door open until dry and well aired. Allow no corner to be overlooked, if it is to be kept in perfect condition. Never allow butter to be kept in the same compartment of the box with anything except sweet cream or unopened butter. Nothing so quickly absorbs the taste of other things. The presence of lemons or melons will destroy the best butter ever made.—Good-Living.

THE ADVOCATE.

The Soldier.

Sam McKee, of Louisville, who is known to our people, in the course of an address before the G. A. R. celebration, paid the following tribute to the soldier:

"Soldiers always and by all nations have formed the chief topics of history, have had highest praise, and have been, more than all others, the subjects of story and song. The world's history is full of their deeds. Saved history abounds with recitals of their valor and the honors awarded them for their service to their country."

"Honour celebrates the hero warriors of the saga of Troy in lines of beauty which will be read in all times and in all lands. The men who gave Greece her magnificent splendor and Rome her gorgeous grandeur were those who led their armies to battle. The name of Saladin beams like a star in the progress of the world's history. Alexander and Caesar always stand at the head, and are recalled whenever Greece and Rome are mentioned."

"Napoleon always rushes to the front whenever France is invaded; and Wellington stands for England itself throughout the world. In our own service George Washington is our greatest general figure. One sixty-five millions of people think of George Washington as the soldier standing with his magnificent figure in the uniform of a General, and fighting the battles of liberty which gave us the freedom which we fought to preserve."

"So we, and those who fought after us, will see Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Thomas, Hancock and an abundance of other brilliant leaders of the soldiers of the great struggle 1861-65 on the side of the Union. With men who fought against us, and their children after us, we will recall Lee, Johnston, Jackson, Hill, Breckinridge, and the brave and gallant men with them who, in so many long years of toil and privation, upheld the bitter struggle which they maintained with a bravery and an endurance never excelled. So far in this organization we are doing that which the example of history for 4,000 years prompts us. Keep alive the memory of the soldier. We have no selfish ends to serve. We are non-political, and admit soldiers without reference to politics, religion or creed. But we are intensely loyal to our country and to our flag. We believe in the Republic. We are egoistic enough to believe and assert that we saved this nation. We are not beggars, nor public pensioners. We are the most liberal and generous men alive. We harbor no sentiment of harsh or unkind feelings to those who fought against us. We had the most men, had the most money, and most people to back us. We had the cause of right on our side. We showed, then, that we were not afraid to fight. We contended with as heroic a set of men as the world ever saw. They went down in the end against overwhelming odds, and we have given them this glorious land of freedom by our victory and their defeat—and to them we have given the same right to enjoy the great blessings of a free land and to hold here all the privileges which we enjoy as citizens of the Republic. Their downfall was their gain, and the land they loved so well now blooms with prosperity as it never bloomed before. We are one people, one country, and one flag, and

"The star-spangled banner will continue to over the land of the free and the home of the brave."

"Every soldier, no matter on which side he fought in that fearful war, is now proud of that banner and the country of which it is the ensign."

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medications combined, for that bad feeling arising from kidney and liver trouble. John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: 'Find Electric Bitters to be the best kidney and liver medicine; made me feel like a new man.' J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: 'Electric Bitters if just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; I found new strength, good appetite and felt just like I had a new lease on life; Only 5¢, a bottle at W. S. Lloyd's druggist.'

VELVET CREAM.—Dissolve 1 box of gelatin in 1 quart of milk. Add the beaten yolks of 3 eggs and stir until it thickens; remove from the fire and after it cools add 6 tablespoonsfuls of sugar to the beaten whites of the eggs and stir into the custard. Flavor with vanilla and cool in moulds. In this, as in all cooking where gelatin is used, I use powdered gelatin on account of its delicious flavor and the convenience with which it is prepared, as it dissolves very readily.

Silver Wedding

At their elegant suburban residence, on Thursday evening last, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Grubbs, assisted by their handsome sons and beautiful daughters, entertained a large number of their many friends on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedded life.

April 12, 1866, Mr. Thomas H. Grubbs of Montgomery county, and Miss Mary E. Johnson of Madison, were married, and so lightly friends of ours, that they are scarcely almost as young as you.

When the guests gathered in the spacious rooms of the old-time family residence, that wore such an air of genuine home comfort, and which seemed to have caught from their owners something of their open-hearted welcome, the visitors found a tastefully decorated house ready prepared for their enjoyment.

Beautiful down everywhere told of the refined taste of the hostess, and as the many beautiful women mingled among them, it altogether presented a very fairy scene. On either side of the hall as we entered, we were greeted with "66" and "91," marking the beginning, and the thus, thus, instalment of their married life. This home is one of the few left where can be found traces of that hospitality for which Kentucky was so far-famed in those ante-bellum days, a hospitality now so nearly a thing of a by-gone age, that we often wonder if it ever existed.

Besides the guests from this county, came a number from other sections, to witness a God speed and express the hope that they might be as halo and hearty for their golden weddin as they were for their silver one.

The supper was simply superb. Every one who knows Mrs. Grubbs knows it could not otherwise, and over it all came stealing the perfume from the flowers and the sounds of sweet music.

The most brilliant presents of a most substantial character, which were given them showed in what esteem they were held by their friends.

And when at the hour of midnight the guests took their departure, all felt that it would soon be a long time to pass before they could again be met.

The law is plain and emphatic and the board will surely do its duty.

The circus Saturday was practically all that was advertised, and gave general satisfaction.

It was the largest show that ever came to Detroit, and it had good features, its tent was new and every horse very fine, in costume clean and everything first-class.

The ascent in the balloon alone was worth the cost.

Before dropping, the aeronaut gave him up until he looked like a doll, and his descent, as well as that of the balloon, was watched with intense interest.

An immense crowd attended the afternoon performance being well-witnessed by over 4,000 spectators.

We have heard only good words spoken of the show.—[Detroit Free Press.]

THE ADVOCATE.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

The decay of fruit on the tree means lack of potash, lime, salt or some other nutrient.

If clover seed is to do anything on an already seeded field it must be sown while the ground is still soft and spongy. It is not advisable where other grass has obtained a foothold, but only on bare spots where the seedling failed. If a little commercial fertilizer is sown with the seed, it will help.

The Mirror and Farmer advises in giving milk to young chicks, let it be fresh. Sour milk is not injurious, but there is a liability of its becoming so when the milk remains in the pans long enough to sour, if not changed and the drinking pans cleaned. The main point is cleanliness, so as to avoid gases and bowel disease.

Of the English sparrow a correspondent of Popular Gardening says: "I have noticed during the three past bad fruit seasons, on account of the caterpillar blight, that wherever there were plenty of sparrows there was a good crop of apples, and many a village cottage or amateur could boast more fruit in a small garden, and even on a single tree, than a farmer with acres of fruit plantations."

The use of sunflower seed for poultry in making hens lay has been often recommended. But if ground it is also an excellent food for pigs. The sunflower grows best on rich soil, but it is less liable to injure from drought than corn, and in many places it may make a cheaper and better feed. The stalks when dried are used for fuel, and on many Western farms they are largely employed for that purpose.

Past horse breeders are becoming much disgusted with the gambling influences and evil associations that the race course develops. The trotting-horse men blame the running-horse interest, and return their compliment; but all admit that this gambling influence is running farmer's sons and many farmers too, and had it not been for the introduction of the draft horse to America horse breeding would be at a low ebb.—Good Housekeeping.

A physician gives the following hints about the treatment of one who has sudden chills and is maimed with pneumonia: "In the first stage, quinine, antipyretic, acetate and antifebriles are used. Flaxseed oil is applied as hot as the patient can bear them, are applied over twenty minutes. Expectorants are also administered. The treatment is mainly aérobic in the second stage. Whisky and milk, commonly 'taking the air' in milk punch, are prescribed, the object being to support the action of the heart. In case of pneumonia, where death results, it is always due to heart failure. Digitalis is also prescribed. The treatment is continued into the third stage, and up to convalescence or the fatal issue. The latter comes when the lungs become consolidated so that the blood cannot pass through them and cannot become oxygenated, without which the heart refuses to receive it. To aid the oxygenating function of the lungs, physicians have lately made use of oxygen gas. In cases where cerebral symptoms become manifest, ice-bags are applied to the head."

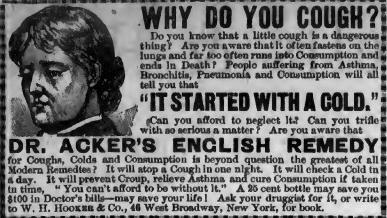

Everywhere as the country grows older it becomes more important to see the hillside, especially those that are steep, to prevent gullying. Continuous cultivation wastes the vegetation that causes rains and allows to sink into the soil and thus to wash off as slowly as to be injurious. So soon as a hillside begins to erode it should be mainly kept in grass, or else so closely underdrained as to supply artificial outlets for water in place of those that cultivation has closed.

Common stock of any kind never pays. The man who can show even a fine brood of blooded horses does it with pride that others envies him. They cost no more to keep, and pour out eggs of superior quality are always in demand at extra prices. The poor farmer can never get rich so long as he wastes his energies and his fast upon poor grades of horses and cattle. Get a start with blooded stock, and thereafter the expense will be no greater than in raising that for which there is no market.—Texas Stockman.

An investigator who took pains to ascertain the number of agricultural papers taken in each township of a certain county in Ohio found that the average of each, as shown by the census of 1885, was in exact ratio to the number of farm papers taken. In one township not an agricultural paper was taken, and the average price of butter for the year was ten and one-third cents. In another township 214 agricultural papers were taken, costing about $250, and the butter sold at an average of twenty and two-thirds cents the same year.—American Cultivator.

A Housonian (Ct.) valley farmer has this to say about recent floods. In Hartford Courant.

"I have sixty acres of meadow land that was overflowed, and I have some 2,000 feet of wire fence ruined, and it will cost me from $50 to $75 to replace the diamond and other stuff deposited thereon; yet, for all that, the flood was worth hundreds of dollars to me as it deposited some three inches of mud all over my fields, which is worth more to me per acre than the best fertilizer would be. For the next five years my crop will be doubled in quantity without the use of fertilizers, and the land will be good for me any crop I might plant. I well know that by experience, as the same fields were flooded once before, and for nine years I did not have to use a pound of fertilizer."

DOMESTIC HINTS.

What a cheerful influence there is in a well-lighted room! It seems to give a different expression to each article of furniture, as it does to the countenance, bringing out the softness of the pictures and draperies, making eyes sparkle and rosy cheeks glow in its mellow rays, reflecting brightness over all. On the other hand, what a depressing effect there is in a room dimly lighted! An atmosphere of gloom pervades everything. No one seems inclined to talk or work and everyone is literally lost in the shade, where often it may be remedied by a little more attention from the housekeeper. If kerosene is used it may become muddy and the basin of the lamp requires emptying occasionally, or the chimneys need washing and sticks to be trimmed or the burner cleased.

If the gas is poor and flickers, it is far better to use lamps for sewing or reading, as nothing can be more injurious to the eyes than attempting any work by a poor light. Whether it is a matter of economy or indifference is immaterial, but there are many rooms where the family assembles in the evening, where the light is so dim and suggestive of a sick room that it is a positive relief when a visit is over, and one can wonder why people are so constituted that they cannot appreciate the advantage of a clear and shining light, which renders every a plain home attractive, and often brightens a gloomy hour in life.—Good Housekeeping.

A physician gives the following hints about the treatment of one who has sudden chills and is maimed with pneumonia: "In the first stage, quinine, antipyretic, acetate and antifebriles are used. Flaxseed oil is applied as hot as the patient can bear them, are applied over twenty minutes. Expectorants are also administered. The treatment is mainly aérobic in the second stage. Whisky and milk, commonly 'taking the air' in milk punch, are prescribed, the object being to support the action of the heart. In case of pneumonia, where death results, it is always due to heart failure. Digitalis is also prescribed. The treatment is continued into the third stage, and up to convalescence or the fatal issue. The latter comes when the lungs become consolidated so that the blood cannot pass through them and cannot become oxygenated, without which the heart refuses to receive it. To aid the oxygenating function of the lungs, physicians have lately made use of oxygen gas. In cases where cerebral symptoms become manifest, ice-bags are applied to the head."

The promptness and certainty of its cures have made Chamberlain's Cough Remedy famous. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough, and is the most effective remedy known for these diseases. 50 cent bottles for sale by T. G. Julian. 35-44

When a person has been out in bad weather, exposed to draughts and the like, and he feels that he has taken cold, the one thing for him to do is to "bundle up," well and walk briskly in the open air until he is in a gentle perspiration. He should then return home, undress quickly in a warm room, take a cup of hot tea, hot lemonade, or hot water, and the chances are that on the following morning he will arise feeling as well as ever.

For a number of years I have been subject to violent attacks of inflammatory rheumatism which generally lasted about two months. On the first of this month I was attacked in the knee and suffered severely for two days, when I procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it relieved me almost instantly. I therefore most cheerfully resorted to it to relieve the similar affliction everywhere. R. D. Wurzburg, Martinsville, N. C., Feb. 1888. Mr. Whithy is very popular here in this place and his disease was very widely known as he suffered such severe pain. W. M. Houston & Co., Merchants, Martinsville, N. Miss Vixen—"I am almost positive Fred Hathaway intends proposing to me, to-night, mamma?"
Mrs. Vixen—"What makes you think so, my dear?"
Miss Vixen—"He acted so mysteriously when I met him on the street this morning."
Mrs. Vixen—"Mysterious! How?"
Miss Vixen—"Why, when I met him he blushed and stammered like a silly school-girl, and finally blurted out that he would like to see me alone this evening. He made me very nervous."
Mrs. Vixen—"Well, do you intend to see him?"
Miss Vixen—"Oh, yes, I'll see him, but mark my words, if he proposes to me to-night, he'll never propose to another girl, if he lives to be one hundred!"

Many people forget or do not recognize the seed of the grape, if it gets into the interior of the anatomy of a human being, is not at all unlikely to create a great deal of trouble. I was reminded of this the other day by a very prominent New York physician, whom I met in a restaurant. He was finishing off with a plate of grapes, and I noticed that he carefully avoided swallowing the seeds thereof. I made some casual allusion to the fact, and the doctor replied very seriously: "If you had performed as many post mortems as I have on people who had merely swallowed a grape seed or so, you would be mighty careful when you were eating grapes, too."—Correspondent New York Star.
